

Obama links health issues to farming, then backs off (The Des Moines Register)

Contributed by Webmaster
Friday, 31 October 2008
Last Updated Friday, 31 October 2008

More info...

Barack Obama appeared to link farming with some of the nations leading health problems, including obesity and heart disease, in a recent interview. Obama - citing an article by Michael Pollan, an author and outspoken critic of U.S. farm policy - told Time magazine that agriculture is "partly responsible for the explosion in our health care costs because theyre contributing to type 2 diabetes, ...

Dalai Lama in Japan after health scare (AFP via Yahoo! News)

Tibet's exiled spiritual leader the Dalai Lama on Friday started a week-long visit to Japan for talks on spirituality, his first trip overseas since a health scare.

Psychology

{mos_sb_discuss:2}